The Gunboat Expedition up the Tennessee.

St. Louis, Feb. 12.—A special dispatch to the Republican, dated Fort Henry, Feb. 11, gives some further particulars of the expedition up the Tennessee river.—The boats, as before stated, went as far as Florence, Alabama, and were received with the wildest joy by the people along the river. The old men cried like children at the sight of the Stars and Stripes, and invited the officers and men to their houses, and told them that all they had was at their disposal. A large number were anxious to enlist under the old flag, and the Tyler brought down two hundred and fifty to fit up the gunboats' crews.

Our officers were assured that if they would wait a few days whole regiments could be raised, and if the Government would give them arms to defend themselves they could bring Tennessee back to the Union in a few months. They said that when the Secession Ordinance was passed armed men stood at the polls, and everything went as certain politicians said. At Savannah, Eastport and Florence, the officers and men of our hosts went ashore without arms, and mingled freely with the people. The Union men along the river comprise the wealthiest and the best portion of the inhabitants, large numbers of whom have American flags. Not a gun was fired, either in going or coming.

The Rebel gunboats Eastport, Sallie Ward, and Muscle, only partially finished, were captured, and are here. The Eastport had two hundred and fifty thousand feet of lumber on board, and the Ward has a quantity of iron plating. The steamers Sam Kirkman, Linn Boyd, Julia Smith, Sam Orr, Appleton, and Bell, were burned by the Rebels, to prevent them from falling into our hands. The railroad bridge at Florence was not destroyed.

A quantity of papers were captured on the Eastport belonging to Lieutenant Brown late of the United States Navy. Among them were letters from Lieut. Maury, stating that submarine batteries could not be successfully used in the rapid streams of the West. One hundred and fifty hogsheads of tobacco, and a quantity of other freight, will be brought down from the mouth of Sandy river to-morrow.

A daily line of packets has been established between Fort Henry and Cairo.

Nothing during the war has been so damaging to the Rebels as the late victory, and the gunboat expedition mentioned above.

The additional accounts received from the gunboat expedition up the Tennessee river to Alabama confirm the overwhelming evidences given by the people along the river of their undoubted loyalty to the Union. The progress of the gunboats was a continued ovation, and the people openly avowed that all they asked was arms to raise against the Secession tyranny and restore the State to the Union. The moral effect of victory at Fort Henry is thus shown to be of the most momentous importance.

St. Louis, Feb. 13.—The Democrat says that Commodore Foote, with the gunboats St. Louis, Louisville and Pittsburg, left Cairo for the Cumberland river on Tuesday night. The gunboat Carondelet was expected to join him at Paducah.

In consequence of the very high water and rapid current to contend against, the fleet was not expected to reach Fort Donelson till this morning. The attack would not be made until there was complete readiness on the part of both land and naval forces to co-operate together. The result, therefore, cannot be expected before to-night or to-morrow morning.

The Republican says that Gen. Hitchcock has not yet accepted his appointment of Major General, but that he will respond when his commission is received.

Eloquent Answers for our French and English Cousins.

A day or two ago we referred to the fact that scarcely a foreign mail arrives without bringing with it a rumor of some kind or other adverse to the Union cause. But we are lately having a glorious compensation for this, for now scarcely a steamer departs for Europe without bearing with it the glad tidings of victory to the Union arms. Mill Spring has already become familiar to Europe; Fort Henry is on the way; and the Africa which departed yesterday at noon, took out the stirring news of Burnside's brilliant victory at Roanoke; and, also, the not less significant account of the remarkable ascent of the Tennessee river by the gun-boats Conestoga, and returning with the welcome tidings that the Union spirit is alive, watchful and hopeful everywhere along its banks, clear into Alabama.

These are the true answers to send back to the sneers and reproaches applied to the loyal States. They are eloquent and emphatic. They speak with a convincing force beyond the reach of paper controversy, of the living power of the Great Republic. May we have such responses to make by every mail, until the annals of the nation, which are now so rapidly encircling the rebellion, bear the old flag in triumph over the redeemed and recovered soil of every State.

LEAVENWORTH, Feb. 12.—The greatest activity prevails at Fort Leavenworth in preparation for the expedition to start from here under General Hunter. Troops and supplies are being concentrated in the southern portion of the State and the indications appear favorable for an early advance. General Hunter himself is working earnestly and unceasingly in perfecting the details of the expedition, and every department is pushed to the utmost capacity.—Seven regiments of cavalry and four regiments of infantry and four full batteries of artillery, with Parrott and Wiard guns, are now en route from the East, and daily expected to join the expedition, which will be one of the most formidable yet organized during the war.

The war is about assuming its most active and important phase in Kentucky.—The whole of Gen. Buell's main army is in motion toward Bowling Green. General Mitchell's division crossed the Green River on Monday, taking the advance of the main column. Thus whilst Gen. Halleck is operating on the Cumberland and Tennessee rivers, approaching the rear of Bowling Green and threatening Nashville, and Gen. Thomas' division is pushing forward into East Tennessee, the Rebels are to be attacked in the front by Gen. Buell in person. With a continuance of clear weather those movements will develop important results within the next week.

THE ADAMS SENTINEL.

GETTYSBURG:

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 19, 1862.

Our intelligence to-day is glorious. We never had a doubt of the final result.—We felt that God would prosper the right, and save our glorious Union. The reality is coming upon us fast and brilliantly; and those who have rebelled must know, by this day, that their vain attempts to sunder the splendid country of our Fathers, is vain and impotent. The effective victories already achieved, show the power, the wise counsels, & action of those at the helm, and the indomitable energy and patriotism of our Army and Navy, which have already, both morally and physically, given a death-blow to Rebellion.

Rejoicing.

The Porter Guards had a grand parade, the town bells were rung, and cannon fired on Saturday afternoon, in honor of the brilliant victory at Roanoke Island. The demonstration was a most spirited one, such as has rarely been presented in our usually quiet borough.

The Porter Guard Band were out in the Democratic Band Chariot, discoursing most excellent music, and attracting more than usual attention.

The Anniversary Celebration of the Sabbath School of the German Reformed Church will take place on Saturday evening next, the 22d inst. The exercises promise to be unusually interesting character. The public are invited to attend.

York Springs District.

We have the gratification to state, that the York Springs District, ever alive to the interests of the Union, and its brave defenders, are still at work in their "labor of love." They have always a kind feeling to those who have left their homes for the "fested field," and furnish something comfortable for them, at all times. Amongst other very suitable and kind presents, they sent to Company K, at Camp Pierpont, a box of Turkey, &c., sufficient for the entire Company; and last week, through the "Leonian Society," two W. boxes, weighing over 900 lbs., containing Turkey, Chickens, Butter, and Provisions of all kinds, for the same Company. The York Springs folks have the right sort of feeling—both in war and politics.

The Right Way to Talk.

In the House of Representatives of the United States, on Friday last, our energetic young Representative, Hon. Edward McPherson, made some remarks on the questions now before the country. We have but a few lines, as yet, of his speech—no more than a mere newspaper report, as follows:

Mr. McPherson, of Pennsylvania, expressed his hatred for those who aid, or sympathize with this rebellion. He held that in no view would it be authorized to close this contest until the Government shall be perfect; until our strength is fully demonstrated, and every American citizen shall be protected over every foot of this Union.

After reducing the Rebel batteries on Roanoke Island, the vessels of the Burnside Expedition entered the waters of Albemarle Sound, and proceeding northward sailed and steamed into Pasquotank River.

This river is three miles wide at its mouth, and gradually narrows until at Elizabeth City (twenty miles distant) it is only 300 yards wide. The banks on the east side are about ten feet high; on the west, considerably higher. Elizabeth City is the head of navigation, but a canal extends northward to Norfolk and Chesapeake Bay. Vessels drawing seven feet of water can ascend to Elizabeth.

It is no small source of congratulation to reflect that the vessels of the Expedition and the military forces are now within forty miles of Norfolk, twenty of which are by way of Elizabeth river, and twenty by the Dismal Swamp Canal.

Elizabeth City was the capital of Pasquotank county, North Carolina. It was one of the most considerable towns in the northeastern section of the State, having been an export depot for lumber and other products of the pitch pine. Its population was about 2500. It contained two banks, three newspaper offices, and several churches, all of which have, no doubt, been destroyed by the torches of the Rebels themselves.

It would naturally be supposed that the intention of Commodore Goldsborough and General Burnside would be at once to pass north up the Dismal Swamp Canal, if its capacity was sufficient to admit the vessels, and attack Norfolk.

The Richmond Examiner, however, says that the fleet, or a portion of it, was pushing on to Edenton.

Edenton contains about two thousand residents. It is an old town, having been settled in 1716. It is situated at the head of Edenton Bay, and has carried on considerable trade.

FRESH & SPLENDID

VICTORIES!

We gave in our last the brilliant affair at Fort Henry, Tennessee. We have more glorious news to-day both from the South and South-west. We give an epilogue below of what important results were effected by the

BURNSIDE EXPEDITION.

BOANOKE ISLAND, ELIZABETH CITY, & ALL THE REBEL GUNBOATS CAPTURED, WITH 3,000 PRISONERS.

We have the official accounts of Gen. Burnside and Com. Goldsborough of the capture of Roanoke Island and the destruction of the Gunboat fleet on the 7th inst. It was a most brilliant affair, and our troops covered themselves with glory.

These accounts, whilst they confirm the importance and completeness of the victory, and the bravery of our troops, make a laughable collapse of the Rebel accounts of the terrible determination with which their forces fought, and the "thousands" of Federals slain before they were driven from their positions by an overwhelming force.

With the exception of a small battalion known as the Richmond Blues, it appears that the Rebels made no serious resistance after our troops were landed.

The main fort, in the centre of the Island, was carried by assault, and the Rebel forces then fled in confusion to the northern end of the island, where they surrendered. General Burnside reports, as the result of the victory, the capture of six forts, forty cannon, near three thousand prisoners, and three thousand arms. The prisoners have been sent to New York.

The loss on our side was thirty three killed and about two hundred wounded. Among the killed were Col. Russell, of the Tenth Connecticut, and Lieut. Col. Monticel, a volunteer, of the D'Epineuil Zouaves. The number of Rebels killed and wounded was about the same as on our side.

The expedition afterward sent after the Rebel gunboats was most successful. With the exception of two they were all captured or destroyed. Elizabeth the assistance of our forces to extinguish the flames. About half the town was destroyed.

City was fired by the Rebel soldiers before they retreated, and the inhabitants solicited

Gen. Wise escaped to Norfolk—His son, O. Jennings Wise, died shortly after his capture. Com. Lynch, of the Rebel gunboat fleet, escaped by wading ashore when his flagship was boarded.

The tone of the Richmond papers show the severity with which the blow was felt.

The Legislature immediately passed a bill providing for drafting in order to fill up the army.

The bill makes soldiers who have served twelve months, and who refuse to re-volunteer, subject to draft.

After reducing the Rebel batteries on Roanoke Island, the vessels of the Burnside Expedition entered the waters of Albemarle Sound, and proceeding northward sailed and steamed into Pasquotank River.

This river is three miles wide at its mouth, and gradually narrows until at Elizabeth

City (twenty miles distant) it is only 300 yards wide. The banks on the east side are about ten feet high; on the west, considerably higher. Elizabeth City is the head of navigation, but a canal extends northward to Norfolk and Chesapeake Bay.

ascend to Elizabeth.

Tremendous Fight at Fort Donelson.

The battle at Fort Donelson was the hottest and longest contested of the war. The latest despatches announce that the Fort has been taken, and the Stars and Stripes wave over it, but we are in some doubt whether this refers to the main fort or to the outer redoubts, which other despatches state had been carried by assault by the land forces under Gen. Grant. These outer redoubts are small forts on the hills surrounding the main fort. Their possession weakens the enemy and renders the ultimate capture of the main work certain. The position of Fort Donelson appears to be a very strong one, and is defended by the Rebels with an energy which shows that they fully understand its strategic importance. From the river side the fort was furiously bombarded on Friday afternoon by the gunboats, but without decisive results. Two of the gunboats had their steering apparatus disabled and were forced to drift out of range. Two others were damaged, and the attack appears to have been temporarily discontinued. The Rebels had twenty guns in action opposed to eleven on the gunboats, and their artillery practice was excellent. On board the gunboats over 1000 men were killed and wounded, including Commodore Foote, whose injuries however, were slight. The mortar-boats were going up the Cumberland, and on their arrival the bombardment was

A Tribute of Respect.
Whereas, it has pleased Almighty God to remove from our midst an esteemed brother, JOHN C. SCHRIEVER, just at the time when it was ready to enter upon the active work of the ministry, just when he was girding himself to go forth and proclaim to his dying fellow-men the glad news of the Gospel?

Resolved, That we recognize in this dispensation, which has brought sadness to our hearts, the hand of a kind Father who doeth all things well. We feel that for him to die was gain.

Resolved, That although God's dealings with us seem mysterious, in thus calling away our brother from the very threshold of the ministry, we have the assurance, that what we know not now we shall know hereafter.

Resolved, That our Seminary has lost a member who was exemplary in his character, diligent in his studies, and one who was beloved by us all.

Resolved, That we should seek to profit from this dispensation of Providence, and to recognize the great Teacher calling to us for greater zeal in prosecuting our studies; but, above all, to strive after increasing holiness, higher attainments in the divine life, and yearning for the salvation of souls.

Resolved, That in our brother's death the Church has sustained the loss of a devoted son, and one who gave fair promise to become a vigilant watchman upon the walls of Zion, and a faithful laborer in the vineyard of Christ.

Resolved, That we tender to the bereaved friends, our warmest sympathy, point them to the consolations of the Gospel, and express our firm expectation, that all Mr. SCHRIEVER's pious friends will have, with him, a happy reunion beyond the grave.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the members of the described, and that they be published in "The Presbyterian," the "Banner," and the Gettysburg papers.

The Beginning of the End.
Talleyrand, remarkable for his witty sayings, called Napoleon's Russian Campaign in 1812 "le commencement de la fin"—the beginning of the end.

After long and laboriously reproached delays, patiently submitted to by loyal hearts who put their trust in the energetic and earnest men called to the direction of our military affairs, but most impatiently and unjustly condemned by pedantic and flippant fads, who were troubled with the same complaint as Moore's "Pactum Ned," we are now reaching sure conclusions: the dark hours are giving way before the dawn.

To have moved directly forward from Washington was so farce policy, which Mc Clellan has stoutly resisted; and while he has held two hundred thousand men at bay before him, the true work has been steadily, rapidly and resolutely going on. Troops have been raised, organized and disciplined; arsenals have been posted, expeditions have been sent; step by step the myriad parts of the gigantic plan have been carefully arranged, in proper subordination of time and place; and now the whole is ready. A thousand telegrams announce the concerted movement, and we have reached the beginning of the end. In this is implied a speedy end, as fast as men can march and horses drag wagons and artillery; for although the fighting may be severe, it will not repulse or delay. It is to be a final end, commensurate in retribution with the unmeasurable crime it is to punish; and finally, it will be a thorough end. Rebellion will never again hoist its black standard in these United States, for history will hold up warning beacons which will alight its rising deserts.

Ground Lime-Stone, is now supplied by those who have tested it to be a much better Fertilizer than Burnt Lime, or indeed any of the other Fertilizers generally applied to land. The following Certificate from Mr. DURAN, an extensive farmer, and highly respectable citizen of Adams County, will attest the truth of this assertion.

It has been trying the Ground Lime-Stone on my land for the last four years and find it to be a better Fertilizer than the Burnt Lime, and cheaper. It has given satisfaction in the first crop.

PETER DUEHL.

Numerous other certificates of like character could be produced, but this is sufficient.

Farmers are requested to send in their orders and to give it a trial.
